SEARCHERS SCRAMBLE over debris in search of dead and injured Thursday after a 160-foot span of a new bridge over the Rideau River in Ottawa, Ont., collapsed. At least eight persons died and 87 were hurt when tons of concrete dropped about 60 feet. The bridge, which also crosses a road and canel, was scheduled to be opened later this year. (AP Wirephoto)

Vice Probe Asked In Wayne County

State Changes X-Way Design At Exit Ramps

LANSING (AP) — A State Highway Department official said Thursday the department has ordered redesigning and rebuilding of 30 freeway interchanges in southeastern Michigan, at an average cost of $400,000 each.

Those to be redesigned now have loops too tight, or have traffic merging on to service roads too abruptly, said G. J. McCarthy, department design chief.

With the loops, "it's not so much a matter of safety, but of capacity," McCarthy added.

Wider loops mean higher permissible speeds, and more cars moved through the interchange within a given time, he added.

Bids will be called in 1967 and 1968 on rebuilding of the interchanges on I 94, I 96 and I 75 in Monroe, Wayne, Washtenaw, Jackson and Oakland counties.

Interchanges Out

Eight interchanges near Jackson were ordered removed because they are too close to each other, creating hazards.

If the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads agrees to participate, as it probably will, it will pay 90 per cent of the cost for most of the modernizing projects, McCarthy said.

"Most of the interchanges that will be modernized in the Detroit metropolitan area were built during the 1940s and 1950s, long before the final design standards for the Interstate Highway System," he said.

McCarthy said some of the interchanges to be modernized have loops with 170-foot radii, meaning a 15-mile-an-hour speed limit, based on comfortable auto handling.

Standards Change

Standards now call for 260-foot loops, allowing 35 mph speed limits, he added.

Where ramps feed into service roads, he indicated, the design would be changed to have them go right up to the nearest cross road, where there ordinarily would be a stop sign.

An example of a problem area, he said, is the exit off I 94 at Belleville Road.

"It's a very short ramp," he said, "and then a two-way service road comes on the motorist very unexpectedly."

Breaks With China

N. Korea States Its Independence

TOKYO (AP)—North Korea today declared its independence within the world Communist movement, dramatically breaking with its old pro-Peking line.

"There can be no superior party or inferior party nor a party that gives guidance and a party that receives guidance," said the official party newspaper Rodong Shinmoon.

"One country of the party cannot serve as the center of the world revolution or the leading party."

The statement also disclosed a purge of party members guilty of "flunkeyism" — a slavish following of the theories of unnamed big Communist powers.

It attacked both Chinese and Soviet communism but the heaviest criticism fell on the Chinese, who regard themselves as the only true defenders of the Communist faith.

Rupture Tires

The statement signified an almost total rupture in Pyongyang's ideological ties to Peking, which have become progressively weaker in recent months.

It also aligned the North Koreans with the trend, demonstrated most importantly by Romania, toward independence and nationalism in the Communist world.

"Each Communist or workers' party can and must shape its policy independently," Rodong Shinmoon said.

It added, "Revolution can neither be exported nor imported. The revolution in each country, of course, is fulfilled in conjunction with the world revolution and is influenced by international factors. Important as outside support is, it plays only a secondary role."

War High Point

Chinese influence on the North Koreans reached a high point with the participation of one million Chinese "volunteers" in the Korean War in the early 1950s.

But relations began to cool after Peking and Moscow became involved in a bitter struggle to be dominant in the Communist world and the Chinese branded the Soviets as traitors to the Communist movement.

Since the North Koreans, like the North Vietnamese, are much in Moscow's debt, they apparently have decided that it is safer to adopt a neutral role than to take sides in the Soviet-Chinese quarrel.

Kelley Charges Bribery, Dope Infest Area

DETROIT (AP) — State Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley called Thursday for a new grand jury investigation of alleged political corruption and bribery, gambling, prostitution and doping of horses in Wayne County.

Kelley made the allegations in a petition filed with the Wayne County Circuit judges, who must decide whether to appoint a new one-man grand jury to look into the charges.

A current grand probe, conducted by Judge Edward Piggins, will end Aug. 31, and cannot be extended, according to state law.

In recommending a new grand jury investigation, Kelley charged that that horses have been drugged at the Detroit Race Track, and Oakland County Circuit judges agreed to appoint a one-man grand jury to probe the charges, which also included accusations of illegal off-track betting and bribery of state officials.

In his nine-page Wayne County petition, Kelley alleged that false campaign expenses had been filed by political candidates or treasurers of political committees.

Officials Involved

The attorney general also charged that some public officials have taken bribes in the form of gifts, money, property "or other valuable things."

Other charges included:

—Willful neglect of duty by some officers and employes of the State Racing Commission and Department of Agriculture.

—Payoffs to public officers for appointments to jobs.

—Threats by public officials and other persons "to accuse others of crimes" with the intent to extort money.

—Entry by unlicensed owners, under assumed names, of horses in races at the Detroit track.

—Willful neglect by public officers and employes of certain governmental units to enforce laws relating to gambling and prostitution.

—Conspiracy to violate state racing and election laws and obstruct justice by public officers and employes.

Kelley said a grand jury investigation would reaffirm the confidence of the state's citizens in the processes of law and order.

Decision Next Week

A decision on Kelley's petition for a probe will be made next week when all 24 members of the Circuit Court bench meet to discuss it. Only 17 judges were on hand during a 2½-hour closed session Thursday. The others reportedly were on vacation.

Meanwhile, the Piggins grand jury requested that three of seven counts of willful neglect of duty be dropped against Wayne County Sheriff Peter Buback and Undersheriff James Bommarito.

Grosse Pointe Municipal Judge Douglas L. Paterson granted the request, which was made by a grand jury prosecutor after he concluded presenting evidence in a pretrial examination.

Buback and Bommarito were indicted by the grand jury March 23 on accusations ranging from conducting an illegal raffle to raise campaign funds to permitting traffic ticket fixing.

The examination is being held to determine whether the two defendants should be bound over to Circuit court for trial.

Tensions High Across Nation

Chicago Negroes Plan March

By The Associated Press

Negro political leaders in Chicago have been urged to join the protests for open housing, including a march planned today into the racially sensitive Bogan area on the city's Southwest Side.

The call for more participation by Negro aldermen, committeemen and legislators and for the march — which had been postponed earlier in the week — came from Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in telegrams sent from Jackson, Miss., where he is ill with a virus.

The Rev. James Bevel, one of King's aides in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, told a Chicago rally Thursday night that at least 500 persons would be in the march today. And he said it would be held whether police protection was available or not.

Protests Rebuked

The protests for open housing launched by King drew a rebuke Thursday from Chicago Police Supt. O.W. Wilson. In an interview, he said the tactics have aroused hatred among some whites "which are to the disadvantage of the Negro population."

Rather than helping the Negroes, Wilson said, the SCLC drive has hampered the city in dealing with the problems.

Meanwhile, 100 white youths marched around a North Side Chicago police station Thursday night protesting alleged police brutality while a crowd of more than 500 persons watched.

The group, composed mostly of youthful Southern migrants, was organized by the "Uptown Goodfellows," whose spokesman said, "This is the first time hillbillies have decided to let their power be felt. Most people don't understand we are kicked around as bad as Negroes and Puerto Ricans by police."

In Detroit, beefed-up police patrols watched a racially mixed East Side neighborhood where rock and fire-bomb throwing had erupted for three straight nights.

Ten Negroes were arrested Thursday night and a fire bomb was thrown into a beer and wine store, causing minor damage. But there were no other attempts to resume the violence which hit the area the previous two nights.

Tension High

Tensions also ran high in the East Flatbush section of Brooklyn after a white mob's rush on a Negro home was repulsed with shots which wounded two white youths. Police posted guards on the home of the Negro.

At Jackson, Miss., King's SCLC called on President Johnson to take steps to reverse the House vote on the open housing section of the 1966 civil rights bill.

"This iniquitous vote which effectively sanctioned discrimination in the sale or rental of private housing only adds more fuel to the fires of frustration burning in the hearts of our Negro ghetto dwellers," the SCLC resolution said.

Gatherings Banned

In Washington, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said he will seek to bring the House-approved rights measure before the Senate Sept. 6 unless a Senate version has been reported out of committee then.

At Grenada, Miss., the City Council banned all gatherings in the town square. Exploding firecrackers and flying bottles and rocks at the square had kept racial tension at a high pitch during the previous three nights.

About 90 Negroes hold a rally at the square a half hour after the ordinance went into effect. A spokesman said they would stay out of the park "just as long as you keep the white boys off this grass too."

An attempt by about 200 Negroes to return to the park Thursday night was blocked by police.

Air Force, Navy Hit Power Plant

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. Air Force and Navy fliers blasted targets within 14 miles of Haiphong, North Viet Nam's major port, while ground forces in the south made sharp contacts Thursday with the Communists in the Central Highlands and near the demilitarized zone.

An F8 Crusader jet from the 7th Fleet carrier Oriskany became the 11th American plane lost over the Communist North this week, equal to any seven-day period of the war.

The pilot parachuted into the Gulf of Tonkin, swam two miles to an island and was picked up by a rescue helicopter.

The chief target of the raids near Haiphong was the Uong Bi power plant, 14 miles northeast of the city. It was first hit last December and was said then to produce 15 per cent of North Viet Nam's electric supply.

American warplanes flew 118 missions against the Communist North Thursday, a spokesman said. Navy planes came from three 7th Fleet carriers—the Oriskany, Constellation and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Ground action was generally light in South Viet Nam, except for two flashpoints where continuing American and Vietnamese spoiling sweeps have accounted for 783 Communists killed in the past two weeks.

In a separate action, two U.S. Marine tanks sank three Viet Cong sampans and killed 15 guerrillas 18 miles south of Da Nang on the Vu Gia River Thursday, a Marine spokesman said.

Elsewhere in North Viet Nam, American aircraft made virtually a shuttle run along the coastal panhandle, where the Communists have stepped up infiltration efforts. Twelve fuel dumps were left ablaze.

U.S. planes sighted only two missiles compared with the heavier barrages the first two days of the week when 59 planes were lost. The Crusader shot down Thursday raised reported losses over North Viet Nam to 332 planes for the air war, the spokesman said.

Gemini 11 Gets Go For Sept. 9

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Gemini 11 has been given a Sept. 9 launch date for a 44-orbit trip to include a unique cartwheel around the world while the spaceship is strung by a cord to an Agena rocket 100 feet away.

Navy Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr. and Lt. Cmdr. Richard F. Gordon Jr., two 36 year-old pilots, also hope to perform the world's swiftest rendezvous then use an Agena they catch to flash to a record height of 865 miles.

Gordon, a rookie astronaut, will stage two work sessions outside the craft totaling about 3½ hours — man's longest exposure to space while unprotected by his capsule.

The space agency officially announced the date Thursday, although it was known publicly for some time that Sept. 9 was the target. Gemini 11 will be the next to last two-man flight before the United States begins three-man Project Apollo missions.

Conrad and Gordon are to blast off from a Cape Kennedy, Fla., launching pad on their three-day voyage at 10:25 a.m. EDT, 97 minutes after an Agena target dashes into orbit.

While previous U.S. space rendezvous have taken three and four orbits, Gemini 11 will be guided to the Agena near the end of the first trip around the globe. This more nearly simulates the rendezvous astronauts will perform when leaving the moon's surface to get to their mother ship for return home.

Moon Shot Put Back On Course

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — After a series of rolls, twists and a burst of power, America's shutterbug Lunar Orbiter is reported on course today for an egg-shaped orbit around the moon.

The 850-pound craft — which resembles an open flower with its solar panels extended — obeyed commands Thursday to fire its main rocket engine and correct its course to the moon, spokesmen for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

If everything goes as planned, Lunar Orbiter will go into orbit around the moon Sunday after its thrust rocket is fired again to slow it down 550 miles from the moon.

Orbiter's goal is to take 352 quality pictures of the moon, helping select a spot where Apollo astronauts may land before 1970.

The main photographic target is a 3,000-mile strip along the moon's equator in which nine areas have been picked as possible Apollo landing sites.

One of the sites is where a Surveyor I spacecraft settled gently on the moon in the dry Sea of Storms. Lunar Orbiter will try to photograph Surveyor.

Orbiter also carried devices to measure radiation near the moon and detect micrometeorites.

The first planned orbit ranges from 129 miles to 1,150 miles above the moon. This is to be changed a few days later, bringing the spacecraft down to 28 miles above the target area.

Race Track Probe Ordered

HAZEL PARK (AP) — A grand jury investigation into alleged illegal activities at the Hazel Park Race Track has been authorized by judges of the Oakland County Circuit Court.

Naming of the one man grand juror was postponed until Monday.

Authorization for the investigation came after Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley charged he had evidence of bribery of state officials, illegal off-track betting and horse doping.

Kelley said in his petition that horses have been drugged at the track in attempts to manipulate races, state employes bribed to overlook violations of the law, and chemical tests designed to discover doping have been falsified.

Gov. George Romney issued a statement in Lansing agreeing that a full investigation was warranted.

FDR Romance Was No Secret

NEW YORK (AP) — James Roosevelt — commenting on a published account of a romance between his father and the late Lucy Mercer — says it was his understanding that "everyone in the family knew" she was at Warm Springs, Ga., at the time Franklin D. Roosevelt died.

The author, Jonathan Daniels, wrote that Eleanor Roosevelt "was bitter and jealous of Lucy during all the years until the last when at Franklin's death in 1945 she found that Lucy, on one of her several trips to Warm Springs, had been with her husband when he died."

James Roosevelt, when asked for comment Thursday, said that Lucy Mercer — later Mrs. Winthrop Rutherfurd — was "an old family friend."

Daniels, who was an aide of Franklin D. Roosevelt and is now editor of The News and Observer in Raleigh, N.C., wrote that a long and secret romance between FDR and his wife's social secretary nearly broke up his marriage early in his political career.

The book says the relationship supposedly ended in 1918, but Roosevelt never completely broke the tie.

James Roosevelt said he did not know of any romance, and explained: "I was a pretty small boy in 1918. I was about 11 then and not aware of anything."

Roosevelt, now 58, is a U.S. delegate to the United Nations Economic and Social Council.

'I'm Sorry I Said It,' Beatle Lennon Pleads

CHICAGO (AP)—"I'm sorry. I'm sorry I said it really. I never meant it as a lousy, antireligious thing," apologized Beatle John Lennon.

He attempted to explain Thursday night his remarks about Christianity, which set off boycotts and bonfires in the United States.

The main thing, Lennon said, is that he was misunderstood.

"I wasn't saying whatever they're saying I was saying," he told a news conference. "I was sort of deploring the attitude toward Christianity."

He added: "From what I've read or observed, it (Christianity) just seems to me to be shrinking, to be losing contact."

Paul McCartney added: "And we all deplore the fact."

Lennon said he was "worried to death" about the controversy aroused by his statements that the Beatles "are more popular than Jesus" and that "Christianity will go."

Some U.S. radio stations have banned Beatle records after Lennon's remarks were published in an American teen magazine. Some former fans have built huge bonfires of Beatle records and pictures.

In England, Lennon said, his remarks caused hardly a ripple. "They were just taken as a bit of loudmouth thing," he said.

The long-haired singers arrived Thursday at O'Hare International Airport and were to give two concerts Friday. They were greeted by a relatively small, quiet group of fans.

When their limousine drove up to a hotel, however, things were more normal. There were about 200 screaming, leaping, frantic teen-agers swarming all over the car.

Negotiations On Pay Continuing

Bark River-Harris Board of Education meeting Monday took bids on school supplies and paper products for the next school year and awarded U.P. Office Supply of Marquette the contract on its bid of $1,539.14. There were three bidders on school supplies and four on paper products.

Sealed bids on fuel oil, gasoline and bus fleet insurance were taken and Sinclair got the fuel oil contract on a low bid of 10.2 cents per gallon.

The gasoline contract went to Sinclair on its bid of 14.6 cents per gallon. The low bid was by Hallenback Oil Co. of Iron Mountain at 14.48 cents per gallon, but the board rejected this bid because of the distance for required service and other factors.

The fleet insurance went to the Farm Bureau Insurance Co. on its low bid of $576.21. There was one other bid, by Employers Insurance Co. The price of insurance went down from last year, even with one more bus covered.

In other business:

1. Richard Hendra, superintendent reported that negotiations with the teachers for a new contract on wages and fringes were continuing.

2. The recently defeated proposal to reorganize with the Escanba Area School District was reviewed by the board. It plans a special board meeting soon on these problems, of consolidation and building.

3. The board heard a report on the Bark River-Harris School Forest from the Michigan Conservation Department. Pruning is needed on pine plantation and the rest of the stand is in a state of growth and not ready for harvest.

4. Emil Martin of Peronville was hired to maintain the bus fleet.

5. The board will meet in public session in the school library on Monday, Aug. 15, at 9 p.m. to review the 1966-67 budget.

Test Trawl On Lake Superior

The Wilson Brothers, Cliff and Earl, commercial fishermen of Ontonagon, have contracted with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife's Bureau of Commercial Fisheries to trawl for herring, smelt and chubs in Lake Superior for one year on an experimental basis, according to the Michigan Department of Conservation who issued the trawling permit.

The Bureau, under the direction of methods and equipment specialist Warren Handwork, Dollar Bay, furnished and installed $5,000 worth of trawling equipment in the Wilson Brothers' 45 foot steel boat in mid-June.

Early lifts in Keweenaw Bay produced over 1,000 pounds of chubs each. Lack of a market for the chubs stopped this fishing at the time. A plant to improve marketing conditions on an experimental basis and now being set up at the Lake Superior Fisheries in Hancock, is a cooperative project, working in conjunction with the trawling experiment.

The machinery in this plant that will clean, scale, fillet, freeze and package volume fish such as herring, chubs and smelt is furnished and installed by the Fish and Wildlife Service with the building, labor, etc., supplied by a corporation of fisheries companies from Duluth, Minnesota; Bayfield, Wisconsin and the Lake Superior Fisheries in Hancock.

The trawl, new to Lake Superior fishermen, a conical shaped net made of heavy nylon twine with a mesh of approximately two inches, is about 80 feet long with opening 52 feet across. It is fished or dragged on the bottom in about 45 fathoms of water at a speed of three miles per hour. The trawl is fastened to two steel cables, each approximately 800 feet in length.

An electrical depth and fish finder called an echo sounder, indicates where the fish are located. After the trawl is lifted, the fish are spilled on the deck of the boat. Lake trout are checked for fin clipping and recordings made after which they are returned to the water. Other species of fish are boxed and iced on the boat for marketing.

The Wilson Brothers will continue their search for herring, smelt and chubs in the Keweenaw-Huron Bay areas of Lake Superior this fall. They will also report the location and size of coho salmon that were released in the Big Huron River late this past spring, if and when they take them.

Recreation Area:

Board Considers Tower Site Best

The Escanaba Planning Commission, meeting in the City Hall Thursday, reaffirmed an earlier recommendation that it considers the city water tower site preferable for a recreation building.

The discussion came to the Commission at the request of the City Council, which had asked the Commission to consider recreation building design and site.

City Councilman Edward J. Cox was present for the meeting. It had been his interest, expressed at a recent Council meeting, that reactivated the recreation building proposal.

The city has nearly $300,000 in Catherine Bonifas Funds which might be available for a recreation building. The fund is controlled by the City Council, acting as trustees.

The Planning Commission will check the design of the proposed recreation building and site plans as they are developed by the city Recreation Board, whose consideration of the project is also requested by the Council.

The priority rating of the proposed recreation building in the city's capital improvements program will be studied by the Planning Commission also.

The desire to have the program progress as rapidly as feasible was indicated in the discussions at the Commission meeting.

The proposal to vacate a section of Stephenson Ave. adjacent to Rose Park, enlarging the park area for tennis court construction was discussed. Reports were made by Paul Vardigan, recreation director, on the recreational value of the site; and by Police Chief Harold Finman on the safety factors, which will be further considered by the Safety Committee.

The effect of the proposed street change on total street planning will be the subject of inquiry of Bartholomew & Associates, city planning consultants.

Representatives of Bartholomew & Associates will meet with the Planning Commission and City Council in joint meeting Thursday evening, Aug. 18, at the City Hall. The consultants will present an economic and property studies report.

Still Problems But. . .

Bankers Told U.P. Growth

The next 10 years in the United States hold promise of being a "fabulous decade," directors of the Ninth Federal Reserve District were told at a luncheon meeting Thursday.

They were addressed by Dr. Edgar L. Harden, Northern Michigan University president, at the university.

"Education will soar" in the next decade, Harden told the 12 directors who came to the Upper Peninsula for the August meeting of Ninth Federal Reserve Bank.

He said enrollment in colleges and universities will climb from today's 5 million to 10 million in 1975. Spending on education will rise to $60 billion a year — 30 per cent above the present level.

Sizable Voting Bloc

One-third of the nation's population will be students, Harden said, and teachers will number 3 million and present a sizable voting bloc on matters of public policy.

Harden told the FRB officials that the luxuries of today — homes, cars, appliances, etc. — would be standards of tomorrow. He said a new national roadbuilding program would be undertaken after the present program is completed in 1972.

Decade Of Progress

The future he envisioned was optimistic, but Harden reminded his audience that many people 10 years ago did not foresee the growth that has occurred in the past decade. He used the experience of Northern Michigan University to illustrate the point.

The university's budget 10 years ago was $585,000, he said; today it is $23,700,000. Enrollment a decade ago was 950; next fall it will number 7,000.

The Upper Peninsula, Harden said, was not in good economic shape a decade ago, but that has changed dramatically.

There was little copper mining in the Upper Peninsula. Forest products industries lagged, air transportation was limited, there were no superhighways and no bridge across the Straits of Mackinac, there was no television, cable TV or FM radio.

Growth And Problems

"Apathy, indifference and a sort of futility prevaded our thinking then, but now some are afraid we are growing too fast," Harden said.

Although the NMU president pictured the Upper Peninsula as a region of vigorous growth, it has not been achieved without problems, he said.

Among them he cited a lack of risk capital, exportation of educated brainpower and a critical housing shortage that has caused a loss in professional personnel — engineers, managers, professors, etc.

He also expressed concern over a state of mind that still finds reasons why things can't be done.

And he warned about a lack of planning for use of "our great natural beauty," natural resources (water, snow, wood) and use of human resources. He feared we may be "undereducated, underemployed and unready for the bursting technology of the Space Age."

Third speaker for the University of Michigan's "Weekend With the Professors" at the House of Ludington in Escanaba on Oct. 20-21 was announced today by Charles Follo, U-M Extension director in the Upper Peninsula. He is Warren E. Miller, professor of political science and program director of the U-M's Research Center.

The other speaker's announced earlier, are Guy Palazzola, professor of art, and Marvin Felheim, professor of English.

The second "weekend" is being presented, said Follo, in response to many requests for "more" from those who attended the first such program in Escanaba last March.

Dr. Miller will present the opening and closing lectures of the conference on Friday and Saturday nights. He will speak Friday on national elections and public policy and on Saturday on public demands and congressional responses. He has been director of the U-M Survey Research Center since 1953 and is author of two books on electoral behavior, "The Voter Decides" and "The American Voter."

Professor Palazzola, who lectures Saturday morning, is a well known lecturer and TV personality and his own paintings have been exhibited nationally and internationally.

Professor Felheim will discuss Shakespeare's comic realism on Saturday afternoon. He has been heard in popular lectures on current books in U-M presentations in the Upper Peninsula. Felheim will also consider some definitions of comedy, both Shakespearean and modern, in his lecture.

Information on the weekend may be obtained from Charles Follo, U-M Extension Service, P. O. Box 394, Escanaba.

Rapid River Schools In Need Of Teachers

Rapid River School Board met Monday and discussed needs for the 1966-67 school year. Walter Peters, school superintendent, reported that the schools' teaching staff was still short four teachers. He stated that the teacher shortage was state-wide.

Peters said that the schools cannot compete with salaries offered by other industries and positions with the Federal Government such as jobs provided through the anti-poverty programs.

The Board requested the superintendent to invite the surrounding school areas of Trenary, Rock and Perkins to a meeting to discuss a new school consolidation plan. Letters will be sent to fuel oil dealers requesting bids for the schools' fuel oil needs for the school year. The Board approved a raise for Rapid River non-teaching personnel.

William Laycock Is Promoted By Resource Dept.

LANSING — Promotion of William E. Laycock to manager of the Conservation Department's southern Michigan region is announced by Warren W. Shapton, deputy director of field operations.

Laycock, 51, has been asistant manager of the region, which includes the 39 southernmost counties of Michigan, since September of last year. He succeeds Shapton, who assumed his duties as a deputy director this week.

A native of Lansing, Laycock was awarded a bachelor of science degree from Michigan State University in 1938. He worked in the federal Civilian Conservation Corps program in the Upper Peninsula from 1939 to 1942 and for the next two years was in the Army.

His service with the department began in 1944 as a game area manager. In 1955 he was assigned to Marquette as regional game biologist for the Upper Peninsula and remained there until becoming assistant regional manager.

$1.6 Million For Ensign Job On US2 Planned

The State Highway Department announced plans for a $1.6 million project to rebuild 9.8 miles of U. S. 2 in Delta County from a point west of Ensign to a point east of St. Jacques.

Unfortunately, the state's plans are not to contract the project until 1970.

The road will be rebuilt to remove dangers created by deterioration and poor base. The highway is rough from poor drainage and frost heave. Its center line pavement joint sometimes opens to a gap of several inches and its surface is poor.

The concrete pavement was constructed in 1937 and capped in 1952. It is 20 feet wide and the modernization will build a new grade and provide a pavement — probably bituminous concrete — 24 feet wide in conformation with all federal aid primary contracts.

The road area to be rebuilt is west of 6.297 mile stretch of U. S. 2 which was rebuilt by the State Highway Department under a $526,234 contract with Thornton Construction Co. last year. This work modernized the highway from Nahma Junction east and did some widening at Garden Corners and at Thompson.

Martin Luther was born Nov. 10, 1483.

Cities and villages shared in the distribution as follows:

Dagett $1,548, Escanaba $29,308, Garden $1,173, Gladstone $12,105, Manistique $8,81.., Menominee $22,303, Munising $8,352, Newberry $5,461, Powers $1,534, Stephenson $2,861.

Duane F. Thorbahn, 20, of 1010 Michigan Ave., Gladstone, pleaded guilty in Escanaba Municipal Court today to a charge of indecent and obscene conduct, and was released on payment of $25 fine and $5 costs. He was arrested Wednesday afternoon in Ludington Park by Escanaba police on complaint of two 15-year-old girls.

In early days, shoes showed the rank or wealth of the wearer, among the Greeks, Romans and Egyptians.

Erlandsen Heads Demo Convention

Representative Einar E. Erlandsen of Escanaba was elected permanent chairman of the Delta County Democratic Convention by a group of about 75 Democrats gathered in the County Building Wednesday.

He assumed the position to a standing ovation after his election in the opening session presided over by George St. Louis, Delta County Democratic party chairman.

In an informal keynote speech, Rep. Erlandsen discussed the difficulties of preparing a budget for the state. As ranking member of the majority party in the House of Representatives, Erlandsen is chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. This Committee's major concern is budget preparation and chairmanship of this committee is a position of considerable influence in state government.

Erlandsen said that due to continuing inflation the Legislative budget adopted in June or July will inevitably be greater than the Governor's budget presented the preceding January, preparation of which began even earlier, in October of the preceding year.

He also emphasized that this year's state budget was prepared and presented cooperatively by his House Committee and the Senate Appropriations Committee under the chairmanship of Senator Garland Lane with a minimum of interhouse friction and delay.

Erlandsen said the major items of increase in the legislative budget over the Governor's, aside from the inflationary increase, was in education items, both in state aid to local school districts and in aid to higher education.

The convention for the first time adopted a party platform which included planks in support of the national anti-poverty program, the U. S. international anti-Communism program and the United Nations. On the state level the platform endorsed a "progressive and equitable tax structure" as opposed to higher property taxes and "adequate financial support of the public school system" including teachers' salaries.

Resolutions adopted included endorsement of the party's state candidates and support of the principle of collective bargaining for all public employees including those under civil service.

Delegates elected to the party's State Convention to be held in Grand Rapids Aug. 19-20 are:

George St. Louis and Robert Ferguson of Ford River, Richard Peterson of Kipling; Leo DeRoeck, Adam Sinclair and Soren Hagman of Gladstone; Einer Erlandsen, Claude Tobin, James Chapekis, Norbert Murphy, Mary Farrell, Elnora Vader, and Tom Cleary of Escanaba.

Alternate delegates include James E. Anderson, Soo Hill; A. J. Mortier, Joseph Hillewaert Emil Johnson and William Girard of Gladstone; James Dotsch of Garden; and Rose Erlandsen, Ann Villeneuve, Barbara Cleary, Neil Kositzke, William Butler, Cully Johnson, Nick Chapekis, Claude Fisher, Esther Meier, Verna Murray and Mrs. William Miron, all of Escanaba.

Dry Potty Lake

Some of the Upper Peninsula's lakes and streams have unforgettably beautiful names. No one who has ever visited Lake of the Clouds, for instance, can easily forget either the visit or the alluring name of the lake. The Big Two-Hearted River is such an imaginative name that Ernest Hemingway appropriated it for his wonderful short story, although it is obvious that the river he had in mind actually was the Fox.

There are scores of Indian names with a special appeal — Michigamme (a lake and a river), Peshekee River, Manistique (also a lake and a river), Ontonagon River, Gogebic Lake, Tahquamenon River.

There are quaint names like Bedspring Lake, Imp Lake, Dutch Fred Lake, Gimlet Creek, Lake Fanny Hooe, Lake on Two, Dead River, Misery River, Snap Jack Creek, Sun Dance Lake.

These are all very fine names, and everyone should be pleased with them. They contribute much to the distinct atmosphere of the Upper Peninsula and reflect some of the unique character of this region.

Unfortunately, not all lakes and streams in the Northern Peninsula are so happily designated. There are many misnamed waters here and far too much duplication of unimaginative names.

* * *

Take Carp River as an example. It is not a pleasant name, nor even an accurate one. Yet there are three Carp Rivers in the Upper Peninsula and at least one in the Lower Peninsula. (The Carp River in Ontonagon County is said to be a mongrelization of the French name, Riviere des Escarpments, a title with an appeal far beyond the river's modern name.)

In Marquette County there are at least two Bass Lakes, and perhaps there are a score of them in the Upper Peninsula. One of the Bass Lakes in Marquette County lies a few miles east of Gwinn. Another is a few miles southwest of Gwinn. And undoubtedly, many fishermen have made their way to one of these Bass Lakes, only to discover when they arrived that the Bass Lake they were seeking was the other one.

Throughout the state there must be dozens of Long Lakes, Mud Lakes, Round Lakes, Silver Lakes and many other often-duplicated designations.

* * *

Lake and stream names were conceived, for the most part, as a matter of expedience. A place began to be known as Mud Lake, and through common usage the name stuck, even though there might have been another Mud Lake in the next township.

Simply because a lake has been known as Mud Lake for generations does not mean that it must be called Mud Lake forever. Besides demonstrating a lack of originality, such names lead to unnecessary confusion and do nothing to enhance the lure of the area.

Wouldn't it be a good idea to have an overhaul of lake and stream names in Michigan? This would be no easy task. Lakes located on state land must have state approval for any name change. Those on federal land must have both state and federal approval. The changes would necessitate alterations in maps and signs and local usage probably would continue to favor the old name for a while, but its worth the effort.

But the result should be an improvement over the present practice of clinging to names that are mud-between-the-toes common.

Tactic When Losing

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — For two decades, the cease-fire has been a major Communist military weapon.

A cease-fire, with the United States as moderator, enabled Mao Tse-tung's Communists to take over China. It gave them the time and the safety from attack they needed to arm themselves with weapons the Japanese surrendered at the end of World War II.

Mao's armies were militarily weak, had few arms and little ammunition. The Japanese were surrendering large quantities of weapons to anyone on hand. The Chinese Communists needed a breathing spell to get those arms to their scattered troops. The cease-fire gave them that period of safety. They kept the truce only long enough to finish the refitting.

When they began to lose in Korea, the Chinese Reds called for truce talks. These talks halted the big U. S. drive north. The Chinese stalled while they built up their local forces, corrected their basic weaknesses in weapons and equipment.

This build-up meant that a resumed U. S. advance would have been much more costly. It put the United States in a weaker bargaining position, enabled Mao to put through an agreement so impotent he broke it openly and repeatedly.

* * *

Hanoi used the Laotian talks to strengthen its military positions.

In South Viet Nam, a cease-fire would give the Communists a free hand to recruit and train additional troops and to infiltrate more arms and men.

Most of the Communist military organization is underground. Supply routes are secret. Open inspection would be like watching the Cosa Nostra and its supply lines with no undercover men.

A cease-fire couldn't stop Viet Cong assassinations, kidnapings and other terrorist attacks, now at the rate of 11,000 to 17,000 a year.

It couldn't stop Red guerrilla troops from attacking whenever they wanted. In every case, as in China, they'd claim the other side had started the firing.

* * *

The inspection teams the United States deployed in China after World War II didn't stop the Reds. Inspection teams failed in North Korea and Laos. The Control Commission in Viet Nam has set a dismal record.

There are thousands of Viet Cong pockets in South Viet Nam. Each would have to be policed with units acceptable to both sides. The Red members of each unit would bar visits to critical areas or stall them. By the time the inspectors arrived, what they sought to see would be hidden or moved.

The job would be like trying to keep track of smuggling in a state of 15 milion if there were 200,000 smugglers, most of whom had a bevy of relatives, if every police smuggler-control team of two consisted of one policeman and one smuggler.

It staggers the imaganation.

* * *

Asian Communist leaders brag about their cease-fire techniques. In private talks in China in World War II, some of these men were quite frank. In a war, they said, a man uses all the means at his command."

"We fight when we're winning," said one top Communist. "When things aren't going well, then we call for talks or a truce to give us time to consolidate our gains for another push later."

SUMMER IS THE active season for snakes in Michigan and here are the ones you're most apt to see. If you shudder at the thought of meeting up with snakes, it may ease your mind to know that Michigan has only one poisonous species — the Massasauga or swamp rattlesnake. And even this rattler, confined to the Lower Peninsula and Bois Blanc Island, is not nearly as deadly as many people think. Its poison could be fatal to a small child, but there is no authentic record of a person dying in Michigan from the bite of a native rattler. (Michigan Department of Conservation)

Get Over Your Shivers

Snakes Deserve Friends

LANSING — Get the shivers at the sight of a snake? A lot of people do, but maybe they wouldn't if they knew more about snakes and took less stock in the false folklore surrounding these curious members of the reptile family.

Before getting into a profile of Michigan snakes and their place in the outdoor world, it might be well to explode some of the tall tales which brand snakes in general as evil, deadly or, at best, undesirable.

Typical of these, according to the Conservation Department, is the misguided myth that the milk snake suckles cows in pasture. Anyone who believes that is apt to put the blame on this snake when "Bossy" doesn't come through with her quota of milk.

You won't find eye-witness accounts to support that the milk snake is guilty of this sort of thing. This snake is much too small to be held accountable for the amount of milk it's sometimes accused of tapping from cows.

Perhaps you've also heard the scare story about the hog-nose snake (puff adder) blowing a deadly or, at least, violent poison. This snake does hiss and puff when excited, but it's only a harmless bluff.

* * *

It's also widely believed, but completely untrue, that snakes are slimy; that they "sting" with their tongues; that the killing of a snake will be avenged by its mate. On and on, the wheel of fiction grinds out so-called "facts" about snakes.

With all these wild yarns circulating, it's no wonder many people are shaky about snakes. Too little has been said about the generally beneficial role snakes play in nature's complex scheme of things.

Many snakes, including the poisonous Massasauga or swamp rattlesnake, eat large numbers of rats and mice which destroy grain and plunder the farmer's chicken house. Many feed on insects which attack gardens and pester people. Some even eat other snakes.

In a few states, nurserymen and ranchers have actually planted some of the larger snakes on their lands to control rodents.

* * *

Here are a few facts about snakes you may not know:

Essentially, snakes are streamlined lizards that no longer need limbs to move about. Several kinds of ancient lizards adopted burrowing habits, and in the course of countless generations their limbs became smaller and smaller until they were completely lost.

The original lizard that was to become a snake is believed to have gone through these stages approximately 100 million years ago. It is not altogether certain, however, that all serpents actually descended from the same four-legged stock.

Snakes are distinguished from all lizards in that the two halves of their lower jaw are connected only by an elastic ligament. Their eyelids are not movable, they have no breastbone, and their ears have no outside opening (snakes are totally deaf).

Generally, snakes produce a large number of young but this may vary from two or three to 70 or more. Many of the offspring never reach maturity, falling victim to hawks, owls, skunks, weasels, some of their own reptilian relatives, and other predators.

The young are born alive or hatched from eggs. Snake eggs are white with a leathery covering and are laid in rotten stumps, leaf mold and other kinds of nature-made incubators. After the eggs are deposited or the young are born, the mother assumes no further responsibilities as a parent; the offspring are fully able to look after themselves.

Snakes have a short active season in Michigan. They come out of hibernation in late April or early May and den up for the winter in late September or the first part of October.

* * *

Ever run across a snake skin and wonder if it was the remains of a dead snake? It probably wasn't because snakes shed their skin several times during the summer.

Of nearly 3,000 kinds of snakes in the world, only 17 species and subspecies are found in this state. It might ease your mind to know that Michigan has only one poisonous species — the Massasauga. And even this one — confined to the Lower Peninsula and Bois Blanc Island (part of Mackinac County) — is not as deadly as many people think. Its poison could be fatal to a small child, but there is no authentic record of a person dying in Michigan from the bite of this native rattler.

The Massasauga can, however, produce some uncomfortable after-effects to those it bites if first aid is not properly and promptly applied. Incidentally, whisky, coffee and other stimulants only make things worse for a snakebite victim.

* * *

All of Michigan's other snakes are harmless. Garter snakes are the most familiar, being found almost everywhere in wooded lands above the Straits. They prefer moist places near the swamps, lakes and streams, but are also present on uplands.

Their diet includes frogs, toads, fish, insects, and earthworms. All garter snakes have a similar color pattern: three narrow, yellow stripes on a brown or greenish background.

Water snakes are also common in many parts of the state, along edges of ponds and streams. They are distinguished by their large, brownish, heavy bodies. Adept at swimming, they feed almost entirely on frogs, salamanders, and fish.

Considerably smaller in size are Michigan's ground snakes, which spend most of their daylight hours under logs, stones, and other such hideouts.

All of these resemble small garter snakes, except the ringneck. It is smooth-bodied with lustrous dark scales and a yellow or orange neck ring.

The slender little green snake, with its rich grass-green hue, is one of the state's most attractively colored snakes. Also known as the grass snake, it ranges throughout the state, but is most common in Northern Michigan. It is the only Michigan snake that feeds almost exclusively on insects.

As its name imples, the blue racer is Michigan's reptilian speed merchant. Most commonly found in Southern Michigan, the blue racer has undoubtedly terrified more people than any other snake in this state because of its lightning-like movements, size and generally menacing appearance.

Although it strikes viciously when cornered, this big, grayish-blue snake is harmless. Its prey consists of mice and other small rodents, small birds, other snakes, frogs, and sometimes insects.

The fox or pine snake frequently vibrates its tail rapidly like a rattlesnake when excited. Its brown markings on a yellow background help to distinquish this snake from a rattler.

Its range includes the western end of the Upper Peninsula.

GOLF TOURNAMENT

Escanaba County Club
Tournament Chairman

I am writing you to compliment your staff on the handling of the U.P. Golf Championship.

The preparation of work prior to the tournament and during the play was very professional. I am certain Jim Crichton and Don Scott are to be extended a warm thanks from all of us who participated in the activity.

I am not familiar with your relations with the Highland Club, but I assume that the preparation between the two organizations was closely coordinated.

My sincere appreciation for the enjoyable four days I spent as your guest. It was my first tournament, and it will have many occasions to be recalled in the years to follow.

The Doctor Says:

Danger In False Teeth

By Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt

"Dearie," said the nurse, "kindly remove your false teeth before you go into the operating room." This request is standard hospital procedure. Removable dental appliances are distinct hazards when a patient is put to sleep with general anesthesia.

G. A. requires air passages to be open and clear. This is accomplished by a technique called intubation — placing a tube through the mouth and throat and into the windpipe.

This long rigid, plastic tube is curved in a way that normally allows easy access into the windpipe, the other end projecting from the mouth.

Rarely and only in unusually small mouths, or mouths with narrow openings is there any difficulty. Upper front teeth are major problems. Many anesthetists have often wished that upper front teeth never existed.

Removing full and partial dentures is a blessing for anesthesists; with no teeth in the way it's much easier to intubate. For patients it's a MUST; it eliminates possibility of breaking the denture and danger of sucking a piece of it into the lungs.

"Permanent" caps on front teeth can also be a problem. Some caps match natural teeth so perfectly that anesthesists don't know they're false; and patients have been wearing them so long they forget they are not part of their natural anatomy.

But caps are more brittle than natural teeth and the anesthetist MUST BE WARNED. In a recent operation, a patient was put to sleep for minor surgery. She had a small mouth and intubation was difficult. In the struggle two caps on upper front teeth broke. There was a thorough search until all pieces were accounted for. This is always an anxious moment because if a piece can't be found, the assumption is that it was aspirated, that is, sucked into the lungs.

During another operation, patient began coughing and showing signs of distress. The tube had to be removed. In trying to reposition it, a front cap was broken and one piece couldn't be found. Chest X-rays didn't show it in the lungs. It was finally found in the gauze mouth pack.

Foreign matter in lungs is difficult to locate and remove, and can cause serious trouble.

The Family Lawyer

DEFENDING UNDERDOG

Within hours after Lee Harvey Oswald's arrest in Dallas, the president of the local bar association went to his jail cell to offer legal assistance.

At that moment, Oswald was probably the most hated man in the country. Yet he was certainly entitled to whatever protection was guaranteed him by the laws of the land.

And so is every man, however unpopular he may be. The offer of legal help to Oswald was in a tradition that goes back to the nation's earliest days, when John Adams defended the British soldiers who took part in the Boston Massacre.

* * *

Nonetheless, it is often true that an unpopular defendant does face special difficulties in finding an attorney to represent him. The problem arises most frequently in cases involving civil rights, heinous crimes, repugnant personalities, or touchy politics—either on the left or right.

Why are many lawyers reluctant to take such cases? No doubt one reason is the personal aversion they may feel to the character of ideas of the defendant.

But a more basic reason is the very real danger of "guilt by association." All too quickly, people jump to the conclusion that a lawyer and his client are birds of a feather.

No other profession is similarly afflicted. People ascribe no wrong to the minister who gives a thief comfort or to the doctor who removes a thief's appendix. But they often take it for granted that the lawyer of a thief, if not actually dishonest himself, is at least inclined in that direction.

* * *

What they forget is the nature of a lawyer's function. His task is not to judge his client. His task is to present his client's side of the argument as convincingly as he can—while the prosecutor does the same for the opposing side.

It is upon this clash of opposing arguments that our legal system relies, above all else, to produce justice. It is this time-tested technique, known as the "adversary system," that is the heart of due process of law.

A famous lawyer was once reproached for defending anarchists. He replied:

"I do not defend anarchy. I defend the Constitution."

Ann Landers

Mom Disappointed By Thoughtful Gift

Dear Ann Landers: Mom had a birthday yesterday and my brother and I put our money together and bought her a beautiful orchid. (I am 14 and my brother is 12.)

When mom came home the box with the orchid in it was on her dinner plate. We both stood in the doorway watching her because we thought we would see her face light up with joy. Instead she hollered, "You kids must be crazy to spend money on such foolishness. Where in the world am I going to wear this orchid? To the supermarket?"

My brother and I were so disappointed we nearly cried. We happen to know that mom has never had an orchid corsage in her whole life and we wanted to give her one.

Do you think we were foolish? Please print your letter and your answer. — WRONG GIFT

Dear Brother and Sister: The gift was lovely, and I'm sure deep down your mother appreciated it. But she also is a very practical person and when she saw the orchid she thought of a few things she needed more —probably things for you kids.

Show her this column and I'll bet she will admit I am right. You sound like wonderful children. Your mother should be terribly proud of you, and I'm sure she is.

* * *

Dear Ann: I am a 40-year-old woman who feels as if she is the next thing to a three-headed freak in a circus. Why? Because I do not drive a car.

My children make me feel guilty because I can't drive them to music lessons, scout meetings, downtown, movies and to the homes of friends who have swimming pools.

I took driver training a few years ago but I was sick with fright and had to go on tranquilizers. Last night my husband said, "You can learn to drive if you set your mind to it. I know dozens of morons who drive." Is he right? Please comment.—BRANLEN WIFE

Dear Wife: Your husband's estimate is low. If you don't believe me talk to any traffic officer.

You probably have a psychological block caused by a long-forgotten incident which terrified you early in your life.

Your problem has nothing to do with your I.Q.—it is emotional. So stop feeling inferior.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I read a letter in your column from a woman who was mad at her husband because he got to the paper first and drew mustaches on all the faces and put pipes in all the mouths.

You said to buy two papers. Why cater to the idiot? Wouldn't it be better to buy the big baby a coloring book and a set of crayons?

And now, here's my problem: My old man divides our paper when it comes. He takes Ann Landers and the financial page. The idea is that we are supposed to trade. But we never get that far. He finishes first and puts the paper over his face and falls asleep. I'm afraid to take the paper off his face because he wakes up and gets mad.

So—Ann Landers, what's the solution?—HALVESIES

Dear Halvesies: The solution is the same as for the creep who draws the mustaches and pipes. Buy two papers—one to read and one for Sleeping Beauty to snooze under.

* * *

Do you feel ill at ease about it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key To Popularity," enclosing with your request 35c in coin and a long, self-addressed and stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

College Budget Raised $67,644; Courses Added

The governing board of Bay de Noc Community College last night approved a budget for the 1966-67 year up $67,644 from this year's budget.

The new budget of $329,286 includes provisions for new courses, but does not include some special activities which will be on separate budgets. It does not include the practical nurse program, the operation of the bookstore and purchases for the cafeteria. In additon to this, a budget of $36,030 had previously been approved for capital outlay, most of which is for a closed circuit television project.

An expansion of the administrative aide program leading directly to employment in business was approved. This is to be a work-study course leading to occupations in middle management and is based upon the recently completed study of occupational education needs, entitled "A Study in Futures."

The program will be coordinated by James Wren, of the college, and the students will alternate between regular classes at the college and on-the-job experience in a variety of locations. It will include study of business, design, production, control and distribution systems, labor relations, sales, marketing, accounting, and business law. This will be a three year long program requiring four college semesters and approximately one year of work experience.

Radio Course

A second major program to be added is in the field of radio and television. The vocational study indicated a need for trained people to work in a variety of jobs in radio and television stations. This will be a one year long program leading to a certificate and employment, with the option of continuing for a second year for more general education and an associate degree.

The students would be involved in study toward the occupation of announcing, sales work, program planning, and radio engineering. Graduates of the program would pass a radio license examination, in addition to the courses. A significant feature of this program will be the actual experience in writing, programming and producing of a radio program, through the cooperation of Radio Station WDBC.

Other new developments at the college will include the maintenance of an evening office to coordinate, plan and promote additional community service education. A major increase in the number of workshops and special classes is expected. Miss Dolores Samson will conduct a series of workshops in secretarial and office specialties and other programs will be run with part time faculty.

Enrollment Up

New student activities include the financial provision for a glee club director, an extended lecture-concert and foreign film series, a college newspaper, and an expansion of extracurricular athletic activities. A tennis team or other such activity representing the college will be planned, if it is possible, at no cost to the college; but, the budget would provide for the rental of gymnasium facilities for the physical education classes.

The college plans an enrollment of 585 students for the 1966-67 year compared with 490 for the 1965-66 year.

Vasold Begins As 4-H Agent

Arthur A. Vasold, appointed 4-H Youth Agent for Delta, Menominee and Schoolcraft counties by the Cooperative Extension Services at Michigan State University, is a former teacher of vocational agriculture for the North Branch Area Schools, and received the B.S. degree from MSU in 1963.

Vasold comes from a family long associated with extension work. The Vasold families of Freeland, which is located in the fertile Saginaw Valley area, have graduated several of their children from Michigan State University, the land grant college of Michigan, and Michigan's home for extension people.

He married the former Carol Huffman of Saginaw in June. Mrs. Vasold attended Central Michigan University at Mt. Pleasant.

The Vasolds have bought the former Al Balanger home in Masonville. Both Mr. and Mrs. Vasold know the Upper Peninsula, having vacationed in the area in the past.

Vasold began his 4-H duties Aug. 1. He replaces Larry Bradford, who was promoted to the extension directorship of Manistee County, his home county.

Treasury Agents Raid Still, Two Men Are Jailed

MONROE (AP) — Two men have been jailed on charges of manufacturing illegal alcohol after U. S. Treasury agents raided a still in Exeter Township near here Wednesday night. Agents arrested Robert Landers, 22, and James Walker, 20, both of Inkster. They also found 840 gallons of mash and 28 barrels and 56 gallons of liquor. Agents estimated the still had netted about $1,000 a week.

Exhibitors In Final Days Of Preparation For Fair

For thousands of farm folk around the Upper Peninsula the coming weekend will be a busy one as they make final preparations to exhibit livestock and agricultural products at the U. P. State Fair in Escanaba beginning Tuesday, Aug. 16.

Exhibitors will compete for a total of $27,000 in premiums in the Fair's 18 departments, said Cliff Perras, Fair secretary-manager.

There's an admission charge of 50 cents per person (admission is free to children under 14) at the Fair gate this year, but there's also an expanded program of free entertainment, including free grandstand performances Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoon and Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings during Fair Week.

Honor Patrols

Parking on the grounds will be free this year, another inducement to visit the Fair.

The schedule for Fair Week provides a variety of outstanding entertainment, Perras pointed out.

Tuesday is Safety Patrol Day, when more than 3,000 youngsters, members of school safety patrols in the U. P., will visit the Fair on its opening day. They will be given special privileges as guests of the Fair Board of Managers, with the cooperation of the Michigan Automobile Club and the Michigan State Police.

One of the features will be the picnic on the grounds, when hundreds of pounds of hot dogs, gallons of soft drink and ice cream will be consumed.

Wednesday is Queen's Day highlighted by the afternoon queen contest program in front of the grandstand and the selection and crowning of the 1966 Fair Queen at night.

Special Events

The 4-H Club members of the region will be recognized on Thursday, 4-H Day. Special features relating to the 4-H program will be presented — a dress revue, talent contest and saddle horse show.

Gov. Romney will visit the Fair on Friday, arriving shortly before noon. After a luncheon at the House of Ludington he will be escorted to the Fairgrounds. There he will address the grandstand crowd at 2:15 and then tour the exhibits and the grounds in traditional Governor's Day program.

The closing weekend of the Fair will include Junior Rifle Tournament and Horse Show; and a program of stock car races.

An expanded midway will be brought to the Fair by the W. G. Wade Shows, featuring spectacular rides and entertainments new to the region.

Minnesota Publisher Says Lake States' Future Bright

By JEAN WORTH

The Northern Great Lakes States ruralism has been advanced as a chief reason for their failure to keep up with more economically dynamic parts of the country.

What of the region's only metropolis — the Twin Cities, Minneapolis and St. Paul — then, are they helping Minnesota develop more impressively than the other parts of the region, Northern Michigan and Wisconsin?

There was opportunity for expert comment on the subject this week with the visit to the Upper Peninsula of the board of directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis. It serves the 9th Federal Reserve District embracing the Upper Peninsula, Northern Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana.

One of the directors on the tour was Joyce A. Swan, publisher of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune. "We (in the Northern Lake States) have some disadvantages because of geographical location," said Swan "but our potential is so great that the future here can be very bright if we can direct our action toward development of things that we need to do.

Good Schools

"We have some extraordinarily fine educational institutions and some mediocre ones and we do need to continue to spend more money on education. The private colleges in Minnesota have generally made a determined effort to build sufficient funds for facilities and particularly for faculty. Macalester, Carlton and St. Thomas have all developed substantial endowment programs.

"Our psychological point of view is odd. If they ask us in the East how cold it gets out here we say 'Twenty-nine below zero' in order to be He-Men. But I have no concern about people wanting to live here in the future if we can provide education, cultural atmosphere and recreation and satisfactory job opportunities.

"You all know a lot of your young people who would like nothing better than to spend their lives here if there were satisfactory job opportunities. They love the skiing and summer sports and the change of seasons. They can do things here that they can't do elsewhere.

Joyce A. Swan

Areas Alike

"Minnesota and the Upper Peninsula are enough similar so their common problems suggest the possibility of working together in a good many areas. We are diversifying so there is more opportunity. The Upper Midwest Research and Development Council (Swan is vice president) is providing a movie 'The Beauty and the Bounty' that will show the diversity of resources of the Ninth Federal Reserve District. It will suggest that we have the beauty and resource potential for growth if we can attack the problem.

"We need adequate job opportunities for the young so they will want to stay in the area instead of spending our money to educate them and send them to the East Coast or the West Coast or somewhere else. We want them to contribute to the future of the Ninth District.

Farming Change

"We have an opportunity in the development of the electronic industry — the brain industry type of growth. That can be developed in the district because it's not dependent upon freight rates. Top flight intelligent labor can be developed here as has been shown by Minneapolis Honeywell and Minnesota Mining and Milling — organizations that have had enormous growth in the brain industry.

"We must develop cultural advantages if we are going to attract intellectuals, things like the Guthrie Theater, our symphony and the University of Minnesota.

"In agriculture we are moving into an era of possible scarcity of food and fiber. We're obviously going to continue to have larger and fewer farms. The small farm can be a part-time venture. We're finding this true in the Twin Cities, with people commuting 40 and 50 miles to work and still doing some farming."

Newspapers Optimistic

Swan said that commitments have been made for pulp and paper industry expansions in Minnesota which have not been announced yet. "That the South should get more paper mills is understandable," he said "it can grow trees faster than we can, but we have potentials for growth."

Of his own business Swan said "The newspaper business's future is more promising than it has ever been. The printed word in a newspaper is going to continue to be the No. 1 medium of information.

"Radio and television will compete for flash news, but if the newspaper develops in depth so the reader can understand what's going on I think the future is very bright for the newspaper business.

"To any critics I say: 'Have you tried to buy a newspaper lately?'

"We've got to work at it, but we're needed."

Auto Production In 1966 Second To Record 1965

DETROIT (AP) — The trade publication Automotive News says the auto industry completed its second best model year in history this week despite a more than 7,000 drop in car production for the final six days.

Automakers built 8,611,928 cars in the 1966 model run. This was 2.66 per cent below the 1965 model year record output of 8,849,032.

Auto production dropped to 10,771 this week, Automotive News said Thursday. This week's count compared with 18,427 last week and 90,867 in the corresponding week last year.

For the calendar year, output rose to 5,412,653. In the same period last year 6,097,507 cars were built.

The industry built 9,691 trucks this week, compared with 12,906 last week and 29,950 in the same week last year.

Calendar 1966 truck output was 1,137,652 compared to 1,116,276 at the same point last year.

Lakes Levels Fall In July

DETROIT (AP)—Great Lakes vacationers will have less water to swim in during August than they did in July, the Army Corps of Engineers said Thursday.

The U. S. Lake Survey reports that the five Great Lakes dropped a total of 12 inches between July 12 and August 12. Only Lake Superior water levels rose, up one inch.

Lakes Michigan and Huron are two inches below the July level; Erie and Ontario are four inches lower.

According to the survey, part of the drop is normal for the season.

The September level is expected to be even lower than the August surface elevation, the report said. Lake Superior will be the only exception — it is expected to remain at its present level.

Mary E. Boulton Bride Of Michael W. Russell

St. Peter's Cathedral in Marquette, it's altars adorned with vertical arrangements of white spider chrysanthemums and carnations, was the setting for the early evening ceremony and Nuptial mass, Saturday, July 23, which united in marriage Miss Mary Elizabeth Boulton and Michael W. Russell.

Two large stands of the same flowers were placed on each side of the altar rail in the sanctuary and the aisle of the nave was lighted with candles in tall gilded risers garlanded with foliage and white satin bows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Boulton of Rochester and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Russell of Marquette.

Honor Attendants

Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. Lynn Gardiner and bridesmaids were Albert J. Hauptman, Miss Jane Russell, sisters of the bridegroom, Miss Kathie Borro, all of Marquette, and the Misses Michelle Morocco and Gail Fletcher of Rochester.

Marlene Pritchett of Ottawa, Canada and Daniel Farley of Milford were flower girl and ringbearer.

Serving as bestman for his son was Frank J. Russell and groomsmen were Paul Boulton, James Russell, Barry Marietta, Albert J. Hauptman and Mark Markantony. Seating the guests were Michael Shabel, John Stindt, Mark Lyon and Charles Stoner.

Organza Lace

The bride chose for her wedding a floor length gown of faced organza styled in the A-line design and featuring an empire bodice of Chantilly lace trimmed at the neckline with pearl embroidery.

A lace mantilla was softly draped over a miniature pillbox and extended the length of the lined chapel organza train. She carried a cascading arrangement of white phalaenopsis, orchids and stephanotis and trailing ivy.

The bridal aides and the flower girl were attired in pale turquoise heavy linen sheaths with sleeveless Empire bodies and panel trains of deep turquoise. Matching veil headpieces and formal white gloves completed their attire and they carried cascade bouquets of Fuji mums and trailing ivy.

Floral Bouquets

The matron of honor carried pale yellow and white flowers and the bridesmaids, pale yellow and Israeli blue. The flower girl carried a basket of yellow and white mums and petals.

Mrs. Michael W. Russell

Mrs. Boulton and Mrs. Russell wore sleeveless formal gowns complimented by corsages of cymbidium orchids. The mother of the bride wore acqua and Mrs. Russell chose a pink.

The wedding reception was held in the Harbor Room of the Hotel Northland and upon their return from a wedding trip to the Bahama Islands the newlyweds will reside at 628 N. Third St., where they will operate their own restaurant.

Luci And Pat Attend Tea In Nassau

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Luci Johnson Nugent and husband Pat attended a tea at Government House the official residence of Sir Ralph Grey, the governor of the Bahamas Thursday.

The tea marked the first time the newlyweds have come out of their honeymoon hideaway since Sunday.

Earlier in the week newsmen failed to lure the couple from the $250,000 villa. Newsmen chipped in to buy 20 red roses in exchange for a brief interview and picture session, but the request was turned down.

Both Luci and Pat were smiling and chatting gaily when the tea party came onto the south patio of Government House for a preparranged session with press photographers.

Luci chatted almost constantly with the governor, smiling frequently. Newsmen were unable to catch any snatches of the conversation.

The couple did not talk directly to newsmen and no questions were permitted.

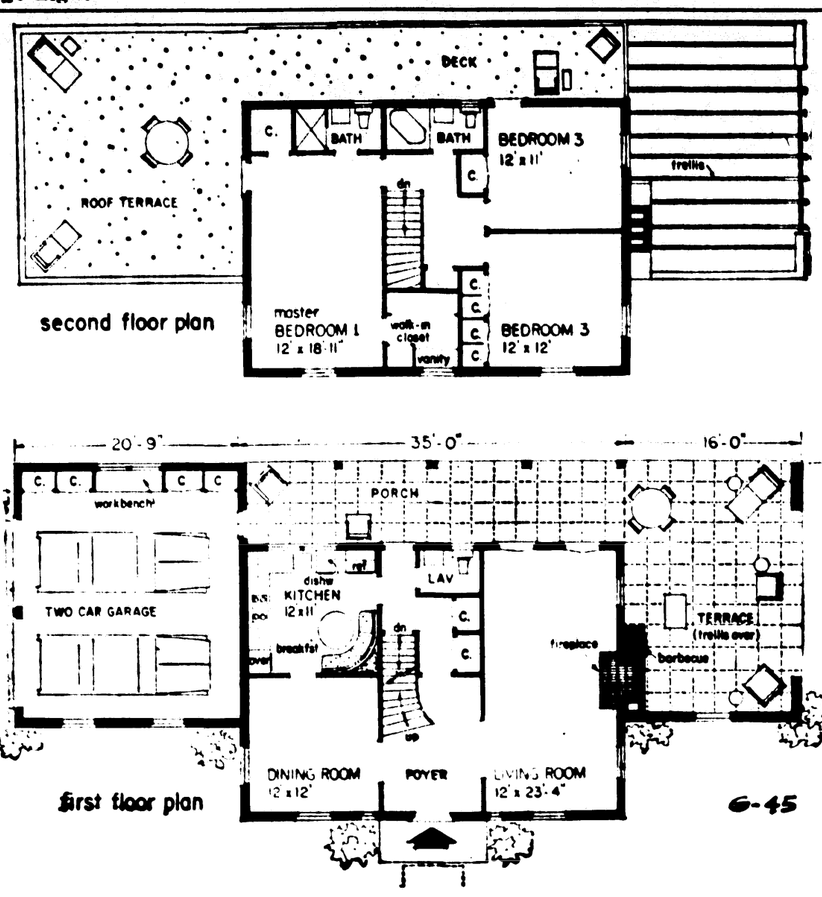
Wings On Modest Colonial

LOFTY DIGNITY: There's a kind of elegant Colonial charm about this three-bedroom, two-story house, with the rectangular appearance of the basic structure given added width by flanking wings, one of which masks a trellised terrace.



FLOOR PLANS: A simple but practical room arrangement on both floors keeps construction costs from soaring, but lower and upper terraces, porch and deck provide plenty of extra space for outdoor living; note front-to-rear living room and master bedroom.

There is some merit to having a house that appears to be larger than it really is.

For one thing, it is more imposing to the eye. For another, construction costs generally are lower in a house with less habitable area even though the structure may seem quite sizable.

This latest House of the Week authentically Colonial, appears big because of the manner in which architect Rudolph A. Matern has designed its flanking winks. But the basic house covers only 869 square feet of ground. Also, the shape of this livable portion is a simple rectangle. And the plan is very straightforward, with the two main, interior - bearing partitions on both floors running straight through front to rear and directly over one another. The two upstairs baths also are directly over the first floor lavatory. All these factors help to cut costs.

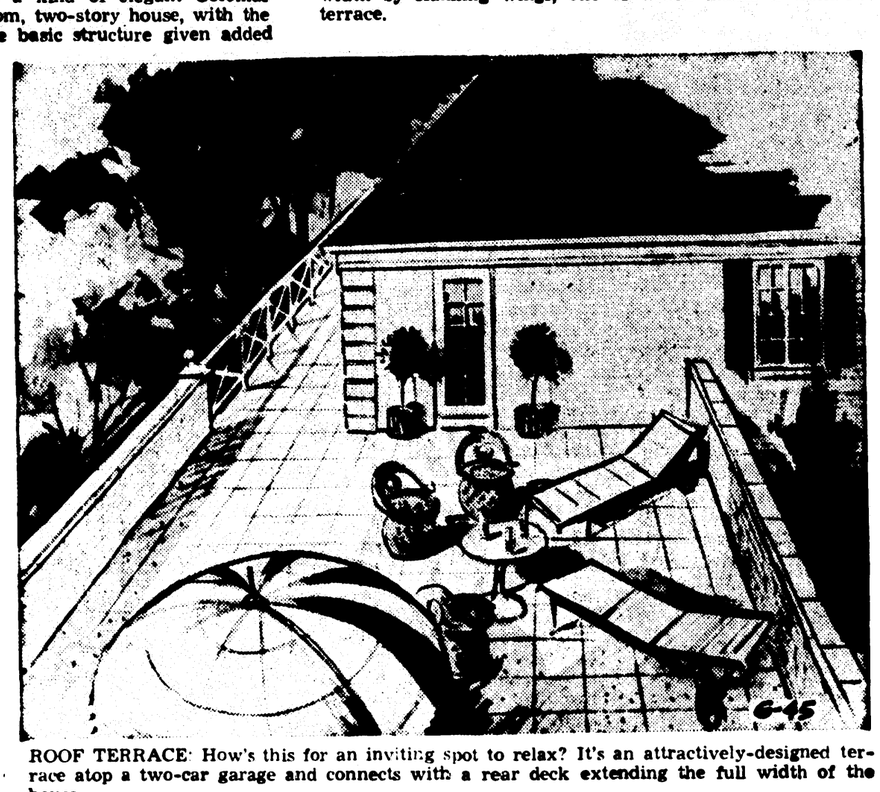
But the simple expedient of placing the two-car garage on one side of the house as a separate wing and locating the doors at the side—and by having a similar wing on the other side — the apparent habitable size of the house increases to a grand proportion. Actually, it isn't really a wing on the right side, but a wall with a short return to give privacy to a trellised terrace, A window in the wall creates the necessary illusion.

Inside the formal front entrance is a 9 by 12-foot foyer. As in the Colonial period, the living and the dining rooms are on either side of the foyer. For a modest-sized house the living room can be considered large, having a length of 23' 4". The design of a full front-to-rear room, with windows on both ends and at the side, has always been popular. There is access to the terrace at the rear of the room. A centrally - located fireplace is another feature, with the chimney also serving a barbecue on the terrace.

The kitchen is well laid out, with a curved seating arrangement and table in one corner for breakfast. To the right of the kitchen is a rear service area, which includes a lavatory, closets and a door to a porch. The porch design serves a fourfold purpose: it weather-protects the rear door; gives cover from garage to house; has a flat roof which is the deck space at the second-floor level; and has wooden rails and posts to enhance the rear facade.

One of the most fascinating parts of this house is the roof terrace on the garage roof. It is 19' by 20' and so will accommodate family and friends. Yet it can be reached through the master bedroom, which gives it an extra use as a private outdoor area for the principals. The long deck along the rear connects with the roof terrace. The master bedroom has its own bath and plenty of closet space. All three bedrooms have cross ventilation.

Brick veneer is used all around the house to make it almost maintenance - free. Slate shingles cover the roof. A glance at the artist's rendering will show Design G-45 to have an elegance seldom seen in modern houses.



ROOF TERRACE: How's this for an inviting spot to relax? It's an attractively-designed terrace atop a two-car garage and connects with a rear deck extending the full width of the house.

G-45 STATISTICS

Design G-45 has a living room, dining room, kitchen, foyer and service section, including a lavatory, on the first floor with 869 square feet of living area. There are three bedrooms and two baths on the second floor with a similar-sized habitable area. There also are two terraces, a porch and a deck, plus a two-car garage with four closets and space for a work bench. Over-all dimensions of the basic house are 35' by 24' 8". Including the garage and the terrace changes the dimensions to 71' 9" by 31' 10".

RISING TEMPERATURE

Some scientists predict that the earth's temperature will increase appreciably in the coming years. Their prediction is based on the rapid rise in consumption of coal and oil, which has increased the amount of carbon dioxide in the earth's atmosphere and carbon dioxide helps the earth hold the heat of the sun.

Rains Improve Crop Prospects

LANSING (AP)—Rains since Aug. 1 have improved prospects for all growing farm crops in Michigan, but more is needed to produce an overall harvest larger than last year's, crop reporters say.

The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service listed all but southern lower Michigan under pasture conditions ranging from very poor to severe drougnt as of Aug. 1.

Most of southern lower Michigan was listed in poor to fair condition.

The hot, dry July hurt Michigan's vegetable production this year, with declines ranging from 11 per cent for carrots to 33 per cent for lettuce and celery, the service reports.

July rainfall was considerably below normal in most areas, except for Monroe County, where extremely heavy rains, hail and wind on July 12 caused widespread damage to crops.

In most sections of the state, the service said, loss of soil moisture to air and plants has exceeded the rainfall since late in May.

At Alpena, it said, there was no measureable rainfall from June 20 to July 19, while rainfall totals ranged down to 25 per cent of normal for May and June in the east central section and to 10 to 20 per cent in much of the northwest.

The wheat harvest came before the dry conditions, and Michigan farmers had a record yield of 41 bushels an acre. Barley also escaped serious drought damage, yielding 40 bushels an acre, compared to 39 last year.

Oat yields were down from 49 to 46 bushels an acre, and hay prospects are for a yield of 1.85 tons an acre, same as in 1965.

Indicated corn yield is 62 bushels, same as last year, and soybean yields are expected to be up from 39 to 40 bushels.

Dry field beans suffered in the drought, and yields are forecast at 1,050 pounds an acre, compared to the recent average of 1,320 pounds. The beans also suffered last year, yielding only 880 pounds.

Only vegetable crop expected to increase this year is cantaloup, with production forecast at 256,000 hundredweight, up 3 per cent from last year.

Alpena Orders Night Controls On Speeders

ALPENA (AP)—In an effort to curb "a small minority of hoodlums taking over the streets after 10 p.m." the Municipal Council here has authorized the city manager to stiffen checks on night-time speeding.

The checks include extra patrolmen on duty, use of unmarked cars and stiffer fines for speeding violations.

City Councilman Robert Yankey said the problem of "hoodlums" cruising the streets and other speeders in the area is getting out of hand and causing public indignation.

Sault Speaker

SAULT STE. MARIE (AP)—William T. McGraw director of the Michigan Tourist Council, will be dedication speaker today at the opening of a new information center for the Soo Locks, the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers announced. The center will contain a working model of the locks and a motion picture theater.

POLITE TO UNKIND, UNINVITED GUEST

(AP)—A suburban housewife politely backed her car out of the way so another vehicle could leave her driveway. Little did she realize, said Police Chief W.O. Haynes, that the driver of the other car had burglarized the house and was making off with her transistor television set.

Boog Romps Bases

Like Track Meet

By The Associated Press

Boog Powell stands 6-foot-4 and weighs 235 pounds. He's not what you'd call fast.

But he turned a routine single into a pretty funny romp around the bases Thursday night in Baltimore's 6-5 victory over the New York Yankees.

A wet ball and some wetter puddles in the Yankee Stadium outfield made it easy.

The Orioles had jumped on Yankee starter Mel Stottlemyre for three runs in the first inning after the start of the game was delayed an hour by rain. Brooks Robinson was on first base with two out in the third when the fun started.

Powell singled to left and Robinson headed for third. "I was going to stop there," Robinson said later. "Then I saw Hector Lopez miss the ball, so I kept going."

When Lopez finally fished the ball out of the puddles in left field and relayed it home, the wet ball squirted past catcher Jake Gibbs. Powell, troubled by a muscle spasm in his right leg, was still at first when Stottlemyre, backing up the play, went after the loose ball.

The line-score on the play reads: Two runs, one hit, three errors.

"I wasn't going to go anywhere," said Powell. "Then I saw the ball get away, so I said, 'what the heck.' I slid into second and the spasm came back again."

Stottlemyre, with plenty of time to catch Powell, threw high, the wet ball sailing into swampy center field. There Tom Tresh fought a losing battle with the moisture while Powell lumbered around third and toward the plate.

"I don't know how I got home," the strapping slugger said. "I just struggled the rest of the way."

"It looked like a track meet for awhile," laughed Robinson.

Powell left the game after scoring and his replacement, Sam Bowens, delivered the 11th inning single that scored Luis Aparicio with the winning run for the Orioles.

Powell said he would have been able to continue if he had time to work out the spasm. "It hurts a bit, but I'll be all right," he said.

In other American League action, Chicago won its seventh straight, whipping Kansas City 10-9, Boston battered Cleveland 13-3 and Minnesota trimmed California 4-3.

Teamsters Win Softball Crown In District Class C Tournament

The Teamsters reached up from the depths of the Escanaba Softball Association standings to capture the championship of the Class C district tournament at Memorial Field Thursday night, whipping the Michigan Hotel by a 15-4 margin.

After taking their lumps in regular season league action in which they were buried in sixth place in the seven team race, the Teamsters jelled into a hard-hitting, tight defensive unit for tournament play. They waded through the double elimination tournament without a setback.

It was a good ball game until the fourth inning last night as Michigan Hotel moved into a 4-1 lead. The margin came when Lowell LaPlant slammed a two-run homer off Bill Babb after an error at first had allowed a pair of runs to cross the plate.

The roof fell in on Michigan Hotel in the Teamsters' half of the fourth, however. It was an inning the likes of which hasn't been seen at Memorial Field in ages.

The Teamsters literally exploded at the plate with Dennis Victorson and Tom Payment blasting homers to get things started. Twelve players came to the plate before Michigan Hotel managed to get a man out. Before the inning was over, 16 players had come to bat and collected 12 hits while scoring 13 runs.

Victorson added a single to his homer, Babb slapped a pair of singles and John Derkos stroked a single and double to pace the Teamsters in the huge inning.

The end came in the sixth when the Teamsters added two more runs with Babb and Victorson scoring on a double off the bat of Jim Barrett.

LaPlant's homer in the third inning was the only hit granted by Babb who fashioned his second one-hitter in as many nights.

The Teamsters lashed Harold Porath and Chummy Derouin for 15 hits with Babb getting three of them.

The champion and runnerup will both advance to the Upper Peninsula Class C championship tournament which will be staged at Iron Mountain Aug. 18-21.

With district tournament action completed, the regular league schedule will be resumed at Memorial Field.

Clarence Konas, association president, today posted the league standings and schedule which follow. The first games scheduled for next week are league games and the second games each night are tuneups for the coming tournaments, he stated.

The Upper Peninsula Class B championship tournament will be played in Escanaba Aug. 18-21 with Bero Motors and Flat Rock among the 12 teams competing.

Pirates Boost Lead On Stargell's Homer

By The Associated Press

Willie Stargell didn't have too much pull with the New York Mets until he stopped trying to.

The slugging Pittsburgh Pirates left fielder, who bats left-handed tried to pull the ball the first two times he faced New York southpaw Rob Gardner Thursday night. He grounded out both times.

Then in the ninth inning, after Roberto Clemente had singled in a run to tie the game 5-5, Stargell came up against Gardner again.

"Harry Walker (Pittsburgh manager) called me back from the plate and told me to do what I was practicing—hitting to the opposite field against left-handers," he said. 'I just tried to hit the ball."

Not trying to pull it, Stargell did just that, whacking Gardner's first pitch into the right field stands for his 26th homer and a 7-5 victory, which increased the Pirates' National League lead to two games over idle San Francisco.

Clemente said he purposely fouled off two bad pitches before singling home the tying run.

"I didn't want to walk," he said. 'I wanted to get it set up for Willie."

In the only other National League games, St. Louis beat Philadelphia 5-1 and the Chicago Cubs nipped Houston 9-8 in 11 innings in the first game of a doubleheader and Houston was leading 8-5 in the seventh inning of the nightcap when it was suspended.

Baltimore edged the New York Yankees 6-5 in 11 innings, the Chicago White Sox trimmed Kansas City 10-9, Boston walloped Cleveland 13-3 and Minnesota defeated California 4-3 in the only American League action.

The Pirates' victory ruined the National League debut of Ralph Terry, acquired by the Mets from Kansas City. The veteran righthander started and went 5⅓ innings, giving up five hits and three runs and would have been the winner if the Mets could have held the lead, which Ken Boyer helped build with four hit.

Pitcher Al Jackson helped his own cause by tripling home the tie-breaking run in St. Louis' victory over Philadelphia. Richie Allen of the Phillies had tied it 1-1 with his 20th homer in the top of the seventh, then Jackson put the Cards in front to stay in the bottom of the inning.

Green Bay-Chicago Clash Tonight

Packers Take Turn At Trying To Stop Sayers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Halfback Gale Sayers gets on with the job of proving he's for real tonight as the Chicago Bears meet the National Football League champion Green Bay Packers in a preseason exhibition game.

Sayers, the toast of the league as a rookie, will be up against the NFL's stingiest defense. The Packers allowed a league-low of only 224 points last season while winning the Western Division crown.

The same defense will take the field tonight in the nationally televised game scheduled to start at 9:40 p.m. EST.

The Packers, already convinced that Sayers is as good as his sensational rookie record would indicate, concentrated all week on ways to stop thrusts of the former Kansas star.

Coach George Halas believes that the Packers and other NFL teams will be able to devise some successful strategems.

"You can't expect Sayers to have another year like last year," Halas said. "He's a great back but they'll rig special defenses for him. What we're working on is aimed at taking advantage of those special defenses."

The Bears, who came on with a rush last season after losing their first three games, are expected to experiment with rookies tonight.

The Packers will also test a number of first year men, including bonus baby Jim Grabowski of Illinois. The fullback will be making his first appearance in a Packer uniform.

The other half of the highly touted Green Bay rookie tandem, halfback Donny Anderson of Texas Tech, is out with an ankle injury and is not expected to play.

The St. Louis Cardinals opened the week's exhibition schedule with a 28-14 romp over the Lions at Detroit Thursday night.

The other games tonight are in the American Football League, with Denver at Buffalo and Kansas City at Miami, in the home opener for the brand-new Dolphins, starting their first season in pro ball.

Saturday's schedule has Baltimore vs. Philadelphia at New Orleans, Dallas at Los Angeles, Minnesota vs. Pittsburgh at Portland, Ore., New York vs. Atlanta at Nashville, Tenn., in the NFL, and Oakland at San Diego and Houston vs. New York at Birmingham, Ala., in the AFL. All are night games.

Lions Bow But Gilmer Can Smile

DETROIT (AP) — Harry Gilmer flashed a broader smile after an exhibition defeat Thursday night than he did after many of the Detroit Lions regular season victories last year.

Gilmer found many things to be pleased about, despite the fact that the Lions dropped a 28-14 decision to the St. Louis Cardinals.

"The things that have to be improved most are improving," Gilmer said. "Our offensive blocking was much better. We showed the ability tonight to gain those four, five and six yards on the ground.

"You don't make 23 first downs," Gilmer added, pointing to a statistics sheet handed him, "unless you have the ability to move with your running game."

Gilmer singled out second year fullback Tom Nowatzke and rookies Karl Sweetan and Bruce McLenna.

"He's going to be one fine football player," Gilmer answered when asked about Nowatzke, who led the Lions rushers with 41 yards in 10 tries.

Sweetan, who played semi-pro ball in a Detroit suburb after failing in his first try with the Lions last year, completed 11 of 14 pass attempts for 121 yards.

"Naturally he was a little nervous, but he's a game kid," Gilmer said. "I thought he showed particular poise in picking up his secondary receivers after seeing his primary ones were covered."

McLenna scored the Lions' final touchdown on a one-yard plunge to cap a 36-yard drive after the Lions had been set back because of a penalty.

Cardinals' third-string quarterback Terry Nofsinger completed just six passes in 11 attempts but three of them went for touchdowns.

He threw 4 and 67 yarders to Billy Gambrell in the third quarter and combined with Sonny Randle from 12 yards in the final quarter. Larry Wilson's 48-yard run with a recovered fumble set up the first TD.

Charley Johnson hit Chuck Logan with a pass on the first play of the second quarter and Logan scored to complete the 68-yard play.

Milt Plum passed to Pat Studstill for 35 yards and a Lions touchdown in the second quarter.

"The things that hurt us most were the fumbles (the Lions fumbled five times and lost the ball four of them) and the interception," Gilmer said.

"I also don't like to see penalties called against my men who were not in the play," Gilmer added.

The Lions defense once again showed it could handle a highly-touted explosive attack.

The Cardinals were held to 46 yards on the ground and one first down. Lion defenders broke through to tackle the Cardinals' quarterback four times and threw them for a total of 35 yards in losses.

"We'll need this long rest to get a few more plays into our offense," Gilmer said, noting that his team will not play again until a week from Sunday when they meet the Giants in New Haven, Conn.

EIGHTY YEARS ago next month Michigan Tech opened its doors for business as the Michigan Mining School—except it had no doors of its own to open. So, it utilized the second floor facilities of the Houghton Fire Hall, above, which still stands near downtown Houghton. In September, 1886, Michigan Tech had 23 students and four faculty members, and the Fire Hall served as the school's home until its first campus building was opened in 1889. Recently, in connection with Michigan Tech's 1966 alumni reunion, a bronze plaque, bottom, was unveiled on the front of the Houghton Fire Hall commemorating Tech's first home.

Johnson, Morse Get Opposite Views In Letters From GIs

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I am proud to be serving my country by being in Viet Nam," a U.S. serviceman wrote President Johnson recently.

"Serving here is the most degrading experience of my life," was the feeling an Army private first class expressed in a letter to Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., an outspoken critic of Johnson's Viet Nam policy.

The two letters are examples of the conflicting views that some Washington officials receive from the troops in Viet Nam.

The President told a news conference last month he gets 50 to 60 letters each week from Viet Nam. The mail shows, he said, that "morale is high, that the men are well and adequately supplied and properly led."

Views Different

He also told an Indiana audience last month, "I have yet to get one letter from a man that says to me that he wants to get out and come home, that he does not want to stay there and do his job."

But Morse, while receiving fewer letters, nevertheless gets a different viewpoint from the battlefront.

In response to requests from The Associated Press for a look at Johnson's mail from Viet Nam, the White House made available copies of 20 letters he has received in recent months.

Morse provided his entire correspondence on the Viet Nam issue for the same period. It contained seven letters from Viet Nam, the remainder from his home state.

One consistent theme ran through most of Johnson's letters — the servicemen writing the President saw themselves performing an important role in the forefront of a crucial battle against communism. None was critical of administration policy.

Spelling Is Same

Morse's mail, on the other hand, consistently was critical of Johnson's policies and told of morale problems and a feeling of uselessness in a land where the writers felt they were not wanted.

About the only things the letters had in common were frequently misspelled words and erratic grammar.

Here, in letters to the President, is how some of the men viewed their reason for being in Viet Nam:

—"I feel that the reason why I was sent here is to keep myself and the rest of our loved ones free from Red China."

—"Now I really know why Viet Nam. Why because if we don't stop Charley here he will be in our homes next."

—"I realize that there is a job to be done over here or we'll all be living under the Communist government and I myself don't like their type of living."

But an Army lieutenant wrote Morse that U.S. force will not defeat communism in Viet Nam. "The cure, if there is one," he said, "lies not in more and better bombs, but in social, political and economic relationships.

"Anyone who has studied the situation has soon come to the realization that the United States has certainly made some serious mistakes in this endeavor. . . . It is reassuring to see yourself, Sen. (J. W.) Fulbright (D-Ark.) and others take the opposite approach."

Credit Unions' U.P. Meeting Set Aug. 23

Officials of Michigan credit unions and savings and loan associations will discuss details of participation in the federal Student Loan Program in six regional meetings scheduled during August.

Staff members of the MHEA Authority will explain provisions of the Higher Education Act and the National Vocational Student Loan Insurance Act in relation to Michigan enabling legislation, recently passed.

Rrepresentatives of local CUs and S&Ls are invited to attend the meeting of Aug. 23 at the House of Ludington at 8 p.m.

Arts, Crafts Program Ends

The summer arts and crafts program offered at the Webster and Royce Park areas, under the sponsorship of the City Recreation Department, will close for the season today.

The program, assisted in part by the Federal College Work-Study Plan, has been a great success. Hundreds of children from 5 to 12 years of age used the facilities and expressed enjoyment with the variety of activities offered. The Webster program, under the direction of Pat Klimetz and Sue Sauve, included making plaster molds, book marks, potholders, costume jewelry, and picture painting in the mornings, and games and wading pool activities in the afternoons.

At Royce Park, Sue Cousineau and Anne Erfourth directed volleyball, dart, shuffleboard and croquet games in the mornings, with ceramics, beadwork and crafts during the afternoons.

It is anticipated that the arts and crafts facilities will be continued next year.

Press Director

DETROIT (AP)—Newspaperman and free-lance writer Bud Goodman was named Thursday as press relations director for Zolton Ferency's campaign for governor. Ferency, the Democratic nominee, moved his headquarters to the Tuller Hotel in Detroit, where both the party and G. Mennen Williams have headquarters.

Gold was used as ornamentation on ancient tombs and for household utensils about 5,500 years ago.
